

When you pray for someone, you are praying for their physical, emotional, and spiritual well-being. You are praying for their health, happiness, and peace. You are praying for their family, friends, and community. You are praying for their future and their destiny. You are praying for their salvation and their eternal life. (Matthew 9:13)

When you pray for someone, you are praying for their physical, emotional, and spiritual well-being. You are praying for their health, happiness, and peace. You are praying for their family, friends, and community. You are praying for their future and their destiny. You are praying for their salvation and their eternal life. (Matthew 9:13)

When you pray for someone, you are praying for their physical, emotional, and spiritual well-being. You are praying for their health, happiness, and peace. You are praying for their family, friends, and community. You are praying for their future and their destiny. You are praying for their salvation and their eternal life. (Matthew 9:13)

When you pray for someone, you are praying for their physical, emotional, and spiritual well-being. You are praying for their health, happiness, and peace. You are praying for their family, friends, and community. You are praying for their future and their destiny. You are praying for their salvation and their eternal life. (Matthew 9:13)

When you pray for someone, you are praying for their physical, emotional, and spiritual well-being. You are praying for their health, happiness, and peace. You are praying for their family, friends, and community. You are praying for their future and their destiny. You are praying for their salvation and their eternal life. (Matthew 9:13)

