Two Silver Trumpets

10: 1-10

Two silver trumpets DIG: What were the purposes of the trumpets in the life of God's people in the past? What will the trumpet's purpose be in the future? How will these trumpets help the Israelites journey through the wilderness? What does it say about God that He is concerned with such details?

REFLECT: What aspects of your own life has ADONAI shown special concern for lately? Just how does he show His concerns? What does this teach you about Him? About yourself? When God wants to get your attention and give you marching orders, what "trumpet blast" does He use?

When the trumpets were sounded with short blasts, it signaled that it was time to follow the fire-cloud and move the entire camp.

We now have come to the preparation for the march. At God's command, the trumpets sounded and the people assembled in marching formation. Thus, the use of the trumpets was Isra'el's response to the divine signal given by the fire-cloud (to see link click Bk - The Pillar of Cloud and Fire). The image of the fire-cloud and God's leading of the people in Numbers 9, is complemented by the leadership and guidance provided by the sons of Aaron through the blowing of silver trumpets.

Throughout these early chapters of Numbers there is a topical presentation rather than a chronological arrangement of the material. They have been telling us the story of the Israelite's preparations to leave Mount Sinai. In the first four chapters of Numbers, they took a census (see An - The Levitical Census) and assigned the Levites to their various tasks (see Ar - The Four Camps of Levites). Numbers 7-10 is a flashback and relates how Isra'el was ready to depart from Mount Sinai. Chapters 9 and 10 tell of the final preparation before the departure from Saini as a flashback on the twentieth of the second month of the second year (10:11); the observance of the second Passover six days earlier (9:1-14); the pillar cloud and fire as a guide (9:15-23); the trumpet signals for assembling the people and its leaders and for breaking camp (10:1-10); the order of march (10:11-28), and a narrative relating a different marching order

(10:29-36).<sup>152</sup>

ADONAI said to Moshe, “Make two trumpets; make them of hammered silver. Use them for summoning the community and for sounding the call to break camp and move on” (10:1-2). The trumpets were not rams’ horns, or shofarim. They were two silver trumpets. The message depended on how the trumpets were blown. When there was a long blast with both trumpets the entire assembly of Isra’el would meet at the Tabernacle. When only one trumpet sounded, only the leaders would meet. When the trumpets were sounded with short blasts, it signaled that it was time to follow the fire-cloud and move the entire camp. Furthermore, a series of short blasts of both trumpets was to be sounded during times of war. In addition, the trumpets were to be blown during the festivals. When they are blown, the entire community is to assemble before you at the entrance to the Tabernacle (10:3).

The two likely were slightly different size and produced varying tones; two trumpets were blown for the assembly of the people and one for the assembly of the leaders. The trumpets were blown with varying tones and lengths of blasts. The Hebrew words used in our text to describe the kinds of sounds which were to be made with the trumpets are also the same words used to describe the kind of sounds the modern shofar blower is to make on Rosh ha’Shanah. Hence, when there was to be a long blast, the Hebrew word is tekiah. The blast can be represented by a long, continuous, straight line, (_____). If only one is sounded, then just the leaders, the heads of the clans of Isra’el, are to assemble before you. When you sound an alarm, the camps to the east will commence traveling because they are in the lead. A short blast is the Hebrew word teruah. It can be drawn with nine dots, ( _ _ _ _ _ _ _ _ _ ). The remaining sound of Rosh ha'Shanah is called shevarim. This one is not in this passage of Torah. It can, however, be pictured by a series of three short, short staccato blasts ( _ _ _ ). Thus, on Rosh ha'Shanah, the main pattern for the sounding of the shofar is as follows: tekiah, shevarim, teruah, tekiah, ( _____, _ _ _ , _ _ _ _ _ _ _ _ _ , _____ ).<sup>153</sup> The different sounds would tell the people what the sound is for and what to do. When you sound a second alarm, the camps to the south will set out; so the principle is that they will sound alarms to announce when to travel (10:4-6).

The two functions are outlined by way of summary in 10:7, and in 10:8 the priests are given the responsibility for sounding the trumpets. However, when the community is to be assembled, you are to sound; but don't sound an alarm (10:7). It will be the sons of Aaron, the high priest, who are to sound the trumpets, and as such were Temple dependent (10:8a). In the ancient Near East, priests were an integral part of a military force (Deuteronomy 20:2-4; First Samuel 23:9 and 30:7). Basing themselves on Deuteronomy 20:2, the rabbis speak of a special priest "anointed for war." The War Scroll of the Dead Sea sectarians goes into great detail concerning the high priest, the "priest chosen for the day of revenge."<sup>154</sup>

The trumpets are said to be given as a permanent regulation for you through all your generations (10:8b). This term is used elsewhere in Exodus, Leviticus, and Numbers to refer to a legal enactment that is underlined as particularly relevant or important. Other perpetual ordinances deal with matters such as the Passover (Exodus 12), Yom Kippur (Leviticus 16), and the ritual of the red heifer (Numbers 19), all of which concern the priests in a special way, although the people were also involved.<sup>155</sup>

When you go to war in your Land against an adversary who is oppressing you, you are to sound an alarm with the trumpets (Joel 2:1 and Zephaniah 1:16); then you will be remembered before ADONAI your God, and you will be saved from your enemies because of God's intervention (10:9). The trumpet blasts also serve as a prayer whose efficacy is recorded in the war between Abijah and Jeroboam (2 Chronicles 13:12-16). The Dead Sea War Scroll prescribed trumpets named "trumpets of remembrance" to be used "when the battle intervals open for the skirmishers to go forth" and bearing the inscription "vengeful remembrance at the appointed time of God." However, trumpets used as instruments of prayer appear to be unique to Isra'el.<sup>156</sup>

As in the case of battle, it appears that the blowing of the trumpets was a means of knowing that the people were remembered by ADONAI. Also, on your days of rejoicing, at your designated times (see the commentary on Leviticus Dw - God's Appointed Times) and on Rosh-Hodesh (a new month), you are to sound the trumpets over your burnt offerings and over the sacrifices of your peace offerings; these will be your reminder before your God (10:10a). The trumpets were used singly or together for administrative, military (2 Chronicles 13:12-14) purposes, but also for worship, and, as this verse points out, they were solely occasions for joy, verified by the ample examples of the trumpet in the Bible: in coronations (2 Kings 11:4; Psalm 98:6); the installation of the ark in David's tent (1 Chronicles 16:6 and 42); the dedication of Solomon's Temple (2 Chronicles 5:12-13); the rededication of the bronze altar and covenant under Asa (2 Chronicles 15:8-15); the purification of the Temple by Hezekiah (2 Chronicles 29:37); the laying of the foundation of the Second Temple (Ezra 3:10); and the dedication of the walls of Jerusalem (Neh 12:35).<sup>157</sup>

In the Second Temple era, the priests used the trumpets to signal the opening of the huge Temple gates, the beginning of Shabbat, the beginning of holy days, the pouring out of the water during Sukkot (see the commentary on The Life of Christ Gp - On the Last and Greatest Day of the Feast), and other significant events in the Temple. In recent years, an inscription from the debris of the Second Temple was found. It is a plaque which was probably once on a Temple tower from which the priests sounded the trumpets. It reads, "For the House of the Trumpeting."<sup>158</sup>

The concluding phrase: I am ADONAI your God (10:10b), states in profoundly plain terms the sovereignty of God over the nation. He is the supreme LORD and ruler of His people Isra'el. The nation is the visible expression of His existence, personality, and saving power. Without Him they are meaningless, but they have been chosen specifically out of His abundant love to be a witness to the surrounding nations (Genesis 12:3) because of their being a Kingdom of priests and a holy nation (Exodus 19:6).<sup>159</sup>

In many American Messianic congregations, trumpet blowing has become an end in itself. Biblically speaking, neither the trumpet nor the shofar was used as a layman's worship instrument with which to punctuate a praise service. The trumpet of the Torah was the given and carefully ordered element of the liturgical service of the Levitical sacrificial system. Except for the shofar of Rosh ha'Shanah, trumpet blowing was a function of the Aaronic priesthood. Unfortunately, trumpets and shofars have become cliché's of the Messianic movement. Probably the exotic look and sound of the shofar has endeared itself to the movement, but when it is blown at every function, it loses any real significance.<sup>160</sup>

Believers should be encouraged to hear the shofar blown on Rosh ha'Shanah (see the commentary on Leviticus Ee - Rosh ha'Shanah: Trumpets), but the mitzvah of the two silver trumpets belongs exclusively to the priesthood and the Temple.

Like the righteous of the TaNaKh during the Dispensation of Torah (see the commentary on Exodus Da - The Dispensation of the Torah), the children of God today are awaiting "the sound of the trumpet" that signals our gathering together to Yeshua as well as Ha'Shem's declaration of war against the wicked world ready for judgment (see the commentary on First Corinthians Dw - The Rapture: Victory Over Death). Until that time, we remain a pilgrim people in this wilderness world, following His Word and serving Him faithfully.<sup>161</sup>

*Dear Heavenly Father, Praise You that you will someday sound the trumpet to call your children to move from this life into their eternal home in heaven. For this we tell you, by the word of the Lord, that we who are alive and remain until the coming of the Lord shall in no way precede those who are asleep. For the Lord Himself shall come down from heaven with a commanding shout, with the voice of the archangel and with the blast of God's shofar, and the dead in Messiah shall rise first. Then we who are alive, who are left behind, will be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air - and so we shall always be with the Lord. Therefore encourage one another with these words (First Thess 4:15-18). As I focus on moving soon to my eternal home of peace and joy, I am encouraged and burdens are lifted. For I consider the sufferings of this present time not worthy to be compared with the coming glory to be revealed to us. (Romans 8:18). Soon the trumpet will sound, calling me and all those who love you to move to our eternal home in heaven, where there will be no tears or sadness. (Revelation 21:4). We wait in anxious anticipation for the trumpet sound and we wisely use our time on earth for Your eternal glory. In Messiah Yeshua's holy name and power of His resurrection. Amen
