Jesus Questioned About Fasting

Matthew 9:14-17; Mark 2:18-22; Luke 5:33-39

Jesus questioned about fasting DIG: Why did John's disciples and the Pharisees fast? What was implied by Yeshua's apostles not fasting? When will they fast? How do the three mini-parables answer the question? What is the old garment? How does new wine into old worn-out wineskins relate to fasting, the Groom, or the Messianic Kingdom?

REFLECT: Where is the new wine in your life? What are the old wineskins? How has the new wine of Jesus burst some of your old wineskins? From these verses, what do you have to do to qualify as a disciple? Do you see any of the modern-day-Oral-Law where you worship? What can you do to call attention to it?

Throughout His ministry, Yeshua was constantly confronted with a first-century sect known as the Pharisees (Hebrew P'rushim). Their name comes from the root parash meaning to separate. They were very meticulous in their religious observance, who set themselves apart even from many of their fellow Jews, especially the common people known as the am ha-aretz. It should be emphasized that there were undoubtedly many P'rushim who followed their strict observances out of a sincere love of God. Undoubtedly, many of Christ's followers even came from the sect, including some rather high-profile rabbis such as Nicodemus and Joseph of Arimathea. But, the disagreements between the Messiah and the Pharisees always revolved around the Oral Law (to see link click Ei - The Oral Law).

Among the pharisaic traditions was frequent fasting, twice a week on Mondays and Thursdays (see Dq - When You Fast, Put Oil on Your Head and Wash Your Face). Apparently, John's disciples were observing a fast at that very time. And it was a confusing time for them as Yochanan languished in Herod Antipas' prison (see By - Herod Locked John Up in Prison); his disciples seem to have wavered in their belief in John's message. Was Yeshua really the Meshiach? There were things about Him that seemed strange and inexplicable to them (John 3:26). In their view, there must have been a terrible contrast between him who lay in the dungeon of Machaerus, and Him who sat down to eat and drink at a banquet with tax collectors.

John's disciples could understand Jesus' reception of sinners because Yochanan himself had not rejected them. But, what they could not understand was why He had to eat and drink with them? Why attend a banquet at the very time that their master was locked up, when fasting and prayer seemed more appropriate? Indeed, wasn't fasting always appropriate? And yet, this new Messiah had not taught His talmidim to either fast or what to pray! The Pharisees, in their desire to cause a rift between Jesus and His forerunner obviously pointed to that contrast again and again.

At any rate, immediately after Levi's banquet (see Cp - The Calling of Matthew) it was at the prompting of the Pharisees, and in company with them, that the disciples of the Baptizer criticized Jesus about fasting and prayer. They seem to have sided with the Pharisees in the Jewish ceremonial and ritualistic observances; Jesus and His apostles did not follow the Oral Law and the Pharisees wanted to know why.<sup>434</sup>

After Messiah forgave the sins of the paralyzed man (see Co -Jesus Forgives and Heals a Paralyzed Man), the members of the Great Sanhedrin returned to Jerusalem to discuss, debate and then vote on the viability of what they had just witnessed (see Lg - The Great Sanhedrin). Their ultimate decision was to decide if the movement of Jesus of Nazareth was a significant or an insignificant Messianic movement. If they found the movement significant, then they would proceed to the second stage of interrogation, during which they could ask questions. They obviously decided that this was a serious movement that needed further investigation.

The members of the Sanhedrin were then free to ask questions of Jesus to determine if He was the promised Messiah. Now John's disciples and the Pharisees were fasting. Some Pharisees came and asked Jesus, "How is it that John's disciples and the disciples of the Pharisees fast often, but yours go on eating and drinking" (Matthew 9:14; Mark 2:18; Luke 5:33)? Unfortunately, fasting had become a mere formality instead of being an expression of true humiliation (Luke 18:13); and how the very appearance of the person praying in public, unwashed, and with ashes on his head was even made a matter of boasting and religious show (Matthew 6:16).<sup>435</sup> The problem with their question, therefore, was their assumption. Pharisaic Judaism at the time believed that when the Messiah came He would follow the Oral Law. Fasting was part of the Oral Law! So their thinking was this, "If You are really the Messiah, why don't You and Your talmidim follow the traditions of the elders (Mark 7:3)?"

Religious ritual and routine have always been dangers to true godliness. Many ceremonies, such as praying to saints and lighting a candle for a deceased relative are actually heretical. But, even if it is not wrong in itself, when a form of praying, worshiping, or serving becomes the focus of attention, it becomes a barrier to true righteousness. It can keep an unbeliever from trusting in God and a believer from faithfully obeying Him. Even going to messianic synagogue or church, reading the Bible, saying grace at meals, and singing worship songs can become lifeless routines in which the true worship of ADONAI is absent.<sup>436</sup> Here, Jesus uses three mini-parables to make His point.

The first parable is a description of a Jewish wedding. The last recorded testimony of the Forerunner had pointed to Yeshua as the Groom of a typical Jewish wedding (John 3:29). The wedding feast did not start and the invited guests assembled until the groom was there to host the feast. When the feast began it was a time of rejoicing for all who were present. Messiah said that just as it would be inappropriate to expect the guests at a wedding feast to fast, so it was inappropriate for His apostles to fast.<sup>437</sup>

Jesus answered: How can the guests of the groom mourn and fast while he is with them? They cannot, so long as they have him with them. As long as Yeshua was living they couldn't mourn because the groom was physically present. They needed to feast, not fast. But the time will come when Jesus, as the Groom, will be taken from them, and on that day they will fast (Matthew 9:15; Mark 2:19-20; Luke 5:34-35). As the departure of the groom from the wedding feast signaled the end of the feast, so Christ's departure would bring the apostles to a time when fasting and prayer would be appropriate. The reference is to the crucifixion. Isaiah said it like this: For He was cut off from the land of the living; for the transgression of My people He was stricken (Isaiah 53:8). Therefore, we can see that during the time when the Suffering Servant ministered, the Kingdom of God was being offered to the nation of Isra'el.

To apply this truth to both John's disciples and the Pharisees who heard His words, the Prophet of Nazareth gave two more parables. To make the point, Messiah referred to two common elements of everyday life around Him - clothing and drink. In each case He insists, by reference to the experience of His hearers, that the change, in order to be effective, must be radical.

Then He told them a second parable: No one tears a piece out of a new garment to patch an old one. The patch refers to the Messiah's new type of ministry and preaching, grace, as compared to the Oral Law, the old worn-out garment ready to be set aside. This was an allusion to the outer garment worn by the average Jew of that day. It was vital for protection from the elements, which is why the Torah forbids it to be taken overnight (Exodus 22:26-27). Furthermore, this garment would include fringes, or tziziot, as mandated in Numbers 15:37-39, in order for Israel to remember the calling of the Torah. Orthodox and other Jews continue to observe this command by wearing a small prayer shawl called a tallit katan to display the fringes. Many Jewish men (and some women in contemporary branches of Judaism) wear a modern tallit today in synagogue to fulfill this commandment. It is this important garment that Jesus uses as an illustration. If a worn tallit is patched with new material, as the new cloth shrinks it will surely tear away the stitches and become useless. For the new patch will pull away from the old garment, making the tear worse (Matthew 9:16; Mark 2:21 Luke 5:36). The point of this parable was that He had not come to help them patch up pharisaic Judaism. He was not going to help them plug up the holes in the fence of the Oral Law. He was presenting something quite different.

The third word-picture illustrates the same truth. And no one pours new wine into old worn-out wineskins. These were made of the skins of animals, such as goats, and these, for a while, served their purpose well. But there came a day, of course, when the wineskins were old and dried and therefore more vulnerable to pressure from within, especially in the forming of cracks. If, in such old wineskins, new wine was poured, the result would be disastrous. This is because the still fermenting new wine would work and expand and thus bring pressure on the old, hard, inflexible containers, beyond that which they could bear. Then it was just a matter of time before the old wineskins would burst. If they do, the new wine will burst the skins. The wine will run out and both the new wine and the old rigid wineskins will be ruined. No, new wine must be poured into new wineskins, and both are preserved. And no one after drinking old wine wants the new, for they say, "The old is better." The point here is that He didn't come to put His teaching into the old wineskins of pharisaic Judaism. The legalistic, external, self-righteous system of traditional Judaism could neither connect with or contain the ministry of Christ. He was presenting something that was new. And no one, after drinking old wine wants the new, for they say, "The old is better." The old wine was the Torah, and the new wine was the Oral Law. And no one, after experiencing the old wine of ADONAI's Torah (Psalm 1:2), will want the new wine of the Oral Law, for the Torah is better (Matthew 9:17; Mark 2:22; Luke 5:37-39). In each case, the two things did not match: feasting and fasting, an old garment and a new garment, new wine and old wineskins. Jesus was noting that His way and the way of the Oral Law simply did not mix.

Believers today are not immune to this. At least the Oral Law was applied all throughout Isra'el. No so from church to church, or from denomination to denomination. Sometimes their rules vary within the same denomination. The things that they are asking you to do are not to be found in the Bible; however, you must conform to their set of rules to be considered "spiritual." My wife and I once were members of a church that sent out a very strong subliminal message; not really even talked about to any degree. But the men were supposed to wear suits and ties, and the women were to wear dresses and heels. My wife (the nonconformist) immediately took to wearing pants suits!

If your employer says, "If you work here we don't want you to (you fill in the blank)," that is a code of conduct and is a reasonable thing to ask. However, if they say, "If you're really a believer you will (you fill in the blank)," then that is merely modern-day Oral Law. Friend, that is legalism. You become a legalist when you expect everyone to live by your rules that are nowhere to be found in the Scriptures. Then you judge their spirituality on the basis of your arbitrary rules and regulations. That's what pharisaic Judaism did.

We need to remember that most Jewish tradition is based upon the Scriptures. So we cannot jump to the wrong conclusion and say that Jesus was being critical of anything rabbinic or traditional. The fact that the Messiah has come clearly has implications for our perspective of Torah (see Dg - The Completion of the Torah), and tradition. One example of tradition is the fact that the third cup of the Passover Seder meal is used by Yeshua to illustrate His redemptive work. This cup is not mentioned in Torah details pertaining to Passover, but is actually a rabbinic idea added during the Talmudic period. It would surprise some that not only are Jewish believers encouraged to remember the lessons of this cup (Matthew 26:26-29), but the Gentile believers of Corinth were to do likewise (First Corinthians 11:23-26).

Jesus came to teach the fullness of the Torah, even to the point of correcting some of the errors in people's understanding of it. In that sense, it gives both Jewish and Gentile believers a way to understand the entire Bible as a consistent revelation from Genesis through Revelation.<sup>438</sup>
