The Priority of God's Word over Tongues

14: 1-40

The stage has been set. Paul has instructed the Corinthians concerning spiritual gifts (to see link click Cf - The Unity and Diversity of Spiritual Gifts). In addition, he has impressed upon them the value of love and its supreme necessity in the exercise of all spiritual gifts (see Ct - The Priority of Love Over Spiritual Gifts). With this clearly before his readers, Paul now takes up the gift of tongues. The Corinthians overestimated this gift and thus became unbalanced. Paul now proceeds to correct that mistake. He does this by showing, at some length, that prophesying, or speaking forth God's Word, is the most needed, and most fruitful, gift for the Church. He makes an extended comparison between prophecy and tongues, and thus shows the priority of prophecy over tongues.<sup>437</sup>

One must not confuse prophecy with prophecy. The word prophecy is a verb and the last syllable is pronounced "sigh." Prophesying is speaking forth God's Word (Ezekiel 37:4-5) and declaring His intention to His people as seen here (see Dl - The Word that Builds Up). But, the word prophecy is a noun and the last syllable is pronounced "sea." Prophecy was a spiritual gift (see Cp - The Gift of Prophecy) during the apostolic era (see the commentary on Acts Ck - Paul Went on to Jerusalem Despite Warnings). The prophet had knowledge of the near historical future or far eschatological future from God. The prophet spoke for Him and was held accountable for his prophecies (see Deuteronomy Dk - A Prophet Like Moses).

Having recognized that there is a role for both speaking in tongues and speaking forth God's Word in public worship, Paul senses that he must conclude by giving some principles concerning their regulation (see Dp - Order in Public Worship). Unless things are not done in a proper and orderly way, the Corinthian church will have no influence on the society around them. How sad that would be for Paul the missionary!<sup>438</sup>

But before bringing this chapter to a conclusion, Paul defends his apostolic authority once again. With a series of rhetorical questions, he asks how it is that the Corinthians consider themselves to be the lone authority on God's Word. If they didn't write it, then they should obey it just like all the congregations of God's people are obligated to do. Then Paul concludes with a direct confrontation with them over his status as an apostle.
